I knew I wanted to be a hairdresser before I even knew what career meant - and I've never looked back.

Starting with a Saturday job at 15, I've grown up in salons, learning every detail of what makes great hair. Now based in Brighton (originally from Plymouth), I've discovered my true calling: creating detailed blonde looks that transform not just how you look, but how you feel.

There's something magical about the blonding process - the artistry, the precision, the incredible confidence it brings to my clients. If you're dreaming of the ultimate blonde experience, you've found your person.

I chose to work at The Hair Salon because of its genuinely inclusive, supportive atmosphere. Here, I've built exactly the kind of client relationships I always hoped for - where appointments feel like catching up with friends. I believe in creating a calm, welcoming space with just the right balance of great conversation and peaceful moments.

Whether you're going blonde for the first time or maintaining your signature look, you'll leave feeling like the most radiant version of yourself.
